

Who Are We?

Hearts and Hands Community Development is a not-for-profit organisation with Australian Tax Deductibility approval and is operated by volunteers.

A charity dedicated to assisting all people equally, regardless of gender, race, religion, or political affiliation.

All assistance offered is on a conditional basis, and dependent on the individuals or community's assessed needs, active participation, and involvement in tailoring their assistance package to achieve 'their' desired outcomes.

Our Mission

- To assist disadvantaged individuals and communities raise themselves out of abject poverty and despair, disadvantage, or living with fear, violence, or abuse.
- To raise awareness of the need to protect children
- To raise awareness of the mobility issues of people within our community and offer a web-based portal for people experiencing these difficulties. Thus, enabling them to find practical opportunities, education, and to give and receive peer reviews of services and products.

We will not duplicate already existing other charity/aid programs within an area.

How do we do so much with so little?

Our support model assists individuals and communities to achieve change for themselves.

We do not give handouts, instead, we give conditional assistance termed as a hand-up.

We assist individuals and communities to develop self-respect, self-pride, and ability to develop self-sustaining skills and projects, enabling the individual or communities to live a full life without fear or disadvantage.

We respect the person or community, without judgment. We are all volunteers and take no payment for our services. Our travel and accommodations are individual volunteer self-funded, and we rely on the generosity of supporters who donate time, money, and goods.
